

Recommended EMS Facial Equipments

Do you know about the recent popularity of ems facial products? ems stands for "Electric Muscle Stimulation" and refers to the electrical stimulation of muscles. ems was originally used as a medical treatment device. They are used to prevent muscle weakness in patients who are unable to move on their own due to injury or illness. And by using it as a facial care device, you can take care of the muscles deep inside your face that you cannot move by yourself.

In this article, we'll introduce you to the ems facial device, including how to use it and 15 recommended ems facial devices.

Types of facial equipment

There are many different types of facial care devices, and it is important to choose the right one for your needs. For those who are concerned about blackheads and pores, we recommend one with a water peeling function. The ultrasonic vibration removes dirt and grime. Steamer type ones use steam to open up the pores and soften the skin, thus increasing the effectiveness of skin care.

How does the ems facial device work?

An ems facial device can stimulate the muscles deep within the skin by applying a weak electric current. It makes the skin firmer and tightens the muscles. It also has a massaging effect, which promotes blood flow to the face, which in turn improves the penetration of lotion and the application of makeup.

What should I keep in mind when using the ems facial device?

When using the ems facial device, it is necessary to use a gel. The use of gel can improve the electrical conductivity and prevent burns and inflammation. However, some facial appliances do not require a special gel, so please check the instructions carefully. Also, check the instruction manual to see if the product can be used with implants or metal implants in the body.
